

OPERACY

(Statement for all policy documents)

- Thinking is an important human life skill which, like literacy and numeracy, has to be learned and practised to be effective.
- We use “thinking tools” to help with this process. These tools help us to generate often completely new ideas in all areas of the curriculum which may not have been considered before.
- Once the thinker has acquired the skills and techniques they can control and direct their thinking at will.
